PUBLISHER'S MESSAGE

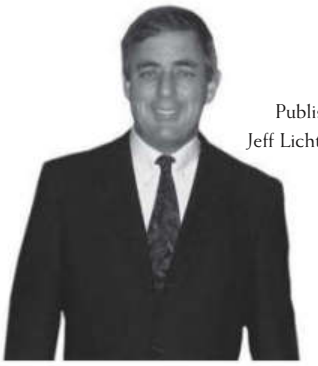

FLORIDA DESIGN LOOKS FORWARD TO ANOTHER 25 YEARS

WHEN LOOKING TO BUY A Florida home and design-related products, our title, Florida Design, ensures we are reaching the most qualified buyers possible. Our content excites affluent buyers, both nationally and internationally.

With national and international distribution through Time Warner, Florida Design targets people around the world. This is especially important since over half of the potential buyers are coming from outside of Florida.

Also, within Florida, our magazine is the state's largest newsstand selling Florida title. In addition, we are also dedicated to expanding our digital media presence, and our Facebook site now has about 350,000 followers, which exceeds the Facebook sites of many of the state's major newspapers.

Our mission is to connect motivated buyers with our clients. We hope you enjoy this issue as we invite readers to take a look at some of the most spectacular tropical homes.

SPECIALIZING IN LED LIGHTING

EDITOR'S MESSAGE

With mild temperatures, sunny skies and balmy nights, Florida's year-round temperate weather allows residents to take advantage of their fabulous outdoor spaces day after day.

And such is the case with a nearly 20,000-square-foot home on Hutchinson Island, an ultra exclusive barrier strip near Stuart, Fla. Inspired by both magnificent Italian Palazzos and the endless vistas of South Florida's Atlantic Ocean, interior designer Joan Simonsen-Hickok created the Renaissance-style theme for this home that boasts additional wraparound balcony space and a private cabana that overlooks the sculpted pool.

Located just a little south, picturesque views of the Atlantic Ocean coupled with multiple outdoor spaces provide nothing less than a tropical oasis for a sprawling, contemporary home in Jupiter's exclusive Admirals Cove. Complete with a golf course on rolling green turf and a waterfront dock, architect Mitch Kunik and designer Katherine Thomas styled this home's outdoor watery complex with an exotic pool, a floating walkway, a spa, and a triple waterfall that spills from the face of the bar.

An array of amenities, such as a cabana room, open-air kitchen gazebo and a 56-foot-long pool, fashions the outdoor spaces of one 4,000-square-foot residence located in Doral, Fla. Created by interior designers Pepe Calderin and Mayleen Marrero, this home offers the tranquility of the warmer climes and the sleek South Florida styling that plays to its waterfront locale.

This season take advantage of Florida's tropical weather that allows us, even in the fall, to step outside and enjoy the fresh air and scenic views.

ALLISON PALADINO INTERIOR DESIGN

Tel: 561-741-0165 | www.apinteriors.com

Principal of Palm Beach-based firm, Allison Paladino Interior Design, internationally acclaimed designer Allison Paladino is known for creating exquisite residential interiors that exude a soft, modern elegance.

ALLISON'S INTERNATIONALLY RECOGNIZED DESIGNS ARE characterized by classical modern style, beautiful woods, tactile materials and a hint of the exotic - often accented with an unexpected blending of multicultural artworks and antiques.

She is also the creative force behind Allison Paladino Collections, her exclusive lines of licensed, luxury home furnishings designs. Inspired by her love of modernism, French Deco and the work of George Nakashima, the collections are designed by Allison and produced and distributed by leading high-end manufacturers, including furniture maker E.J. Victor, Wendover Art Group, New River Artisans and her latest home run collection with Fine Art lamps. The collection features state of the art LED chandeliers and sconces that incorporates an exclusive studio process of dichroic rough cut sculpted glass.

Well-recognized for excellence in residential and commercial interiors, as well as her provocative product designs, Allison's work is regularly featured on the pages of regional, national and international design publications. She holds a B.A. in Interior Design, is a professional member of ASID and NCIDQ, and is a licensed Interior Designer by the State of Florida #1B26000798. - Advertorial

A living room done by Paladino featuring many new items from her home collections. A first by Paladino is her state of the art lighting line for Fine Art Lamps. Also new from her collection with EJ Victor is the silver leaf Breanne bench, figured walnut Siena Table, Nikki sofa and chaise and O'Keefe chairs. The Butterflies and Geos are also new from her collection with Wendover Art Group and Rice Paddies Rug from New River Artisans.

SPECTRUM MIAMI

Contemporary Meets Extraordinary At This Five-Day Fine Art Experience From Dec. 2-6, 2015

TEXT Kim Mosley

Inspired by the dynamic art scene in South Florida, Spectrum Miami plays host to an international slate of artists, publishers, studios and gallery owners for a five-day fine art experience from Dec. 2-6, 2015 in the Wynwood Arts District — the heart of Midtown Miami.

CEO of Redwood Media Group, Eric Smith brings together international art collectors, dealers and curators at Spectrum Miami. Here, in an elegant, gallery style exhibition space, a curated selection of emerging and spotlight artists showcase a dynamic mix of celebrated works. For information, visit www.spectrum-miami.com.◆

Warm Colors And Shimmering Metallic Hues Speak To The Essence Of Style And Design

TEXT Kim Mosley

Contemporary designs combine with classic inspirations as expressive forms and materials speak for themselves at High Point each April and then again in October. Notice the importance of detail as warm colors, stunning metallic hues and an emphasis on simplicity with decorative details exude elegance. With the latest trends in furniture, lighting, accessories and textiles, High Point has its finger on the pulse of global design as manufacturers gather to reveal a wealth of ideas, inspiration and impressions. For more information, call 800/874-6492.◆

BAXTER SETS THE MOOD

A Markedly Mid-Century Modern Attitude Styles Baxter's New "Mood Book" Collection

TEXT Kim Mosley

Hints of the past blend into contemporary and modern furnishings to create an eclectic feel characterized by opaque, soft and comfortable tones found in Baxter's new innovative "Mood Book" collection. These Baxter settings are intimate, cozy, soft and welcoming as shades of saffron yellow, ruby red and sage green become the predominant tones, enhanced and showcased when paired with materials such as brass, opaline glass and new types of leather. With a markedly 1930s-1950s undertone, each unique piece has a story behind it and comes with a guarantee of the highest standards of quality — the result of exacting stylistic research.

Baxter furnishings are now available at Internum, a chain of luxury contemporary furniture showrooms that provides the ultimate shopping experience for the consumer who wants high-end goods and outstanding customer service. For information, call 305/576-1135.◆

VISIONNAIRE HOME PHILOSOPHY

One Of The World's Leading Companies In The Luxury Home Market Reveals New Collections Inspired By Nature's Own

TEXT Kim Mosley

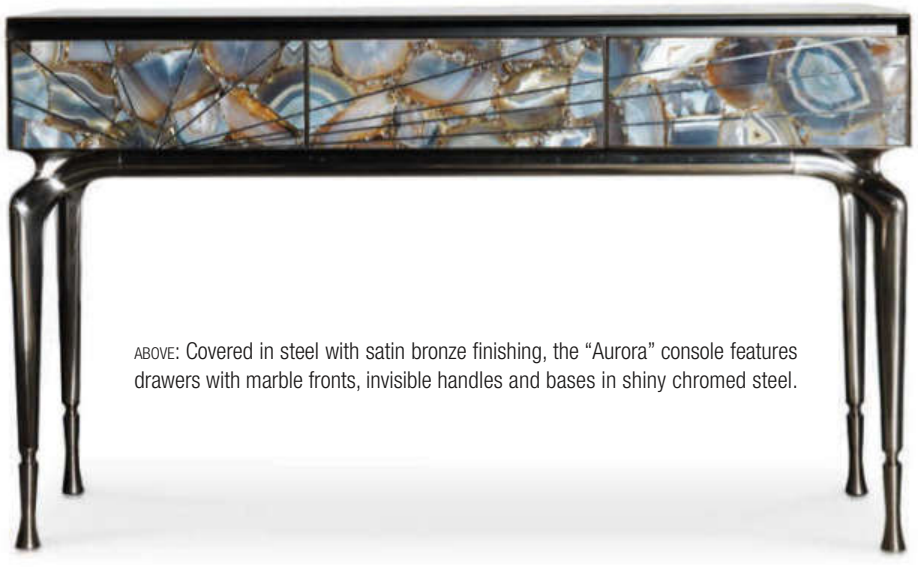

In celebration of a decade of design innovation, Visionnaire Home Philosophy combines visual dynamism, drama and global influences in its new collections created in collaboration with international "archistar" Steve Leung. "We wanted to celebrate our 10th anniversary and the globalization of our company with a capsule collection designed by a world-renowned architect and designer," says Eleonore Cavalli, Creative Director at Visionnaire. Dubbed "Nature's Jewel Box," the collections include furnishings shaped as natural elements, covered with soft tanning leathers, or inlaid with marble, onyx and semiprecious stones. For more information, visit www.visionnairemiami.com or call the Miami showroom at 786/577-4370.◆

In August, Florida Design perused the scene at the World Market Center to check out the 2015 Las Vegas Market — a premier event that boasts a 21st-century platform for what's best and what's next in design. Located in one of the world's most accessible and exciting cities, the Las Vegas Market draws a diverse group of more than 50,000 qualified buyers and various other industry professionals from around the globe to each semi-annual market. With more than 1,200 exhibitors, we sifted through the latest innovative concepts and furnishings for the home to present a smattering of some of the freshest designs from this year's show. For more information, please call 800/748-5065.◆

ONE & ONLY REETHI RAH

The Ultimate In Luxury And Comfort Awaits At This Exotic, Private Tropical Oasis In The Maldives

TEXT Susan Sherman
PHOTOGRAPHY Courtesy of One & Only Resorts, Reethi Rah, Maldives

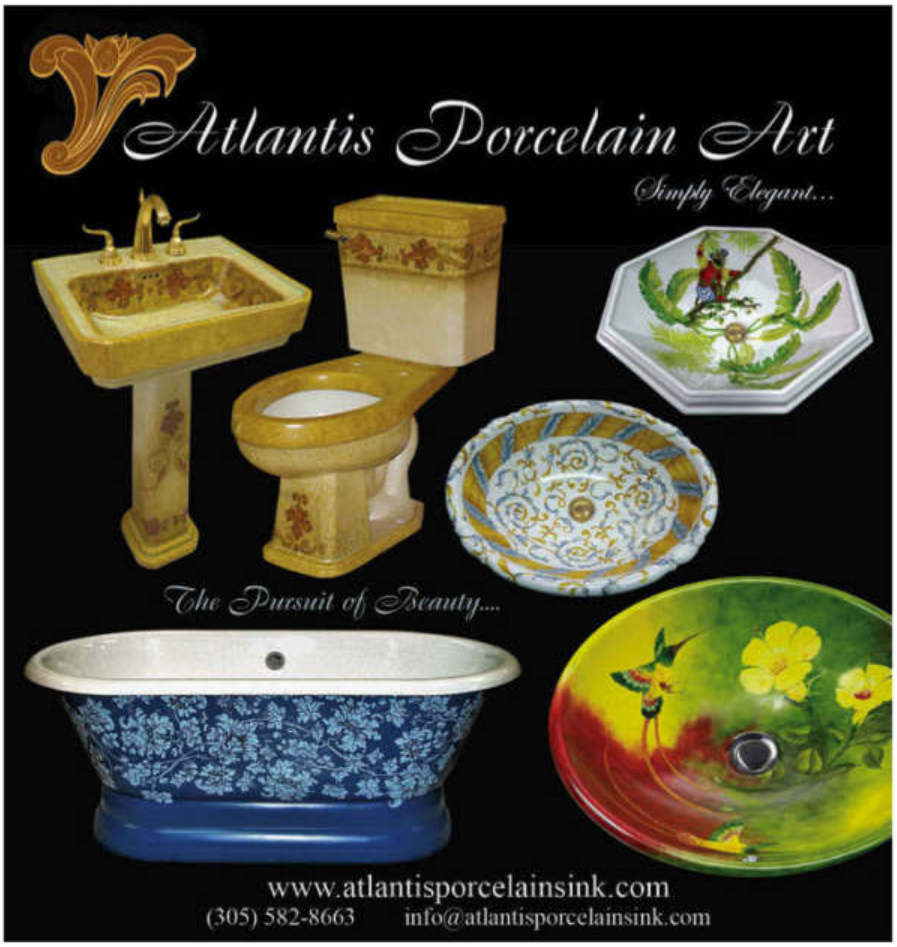

Imagine an exotic tropical escape where an unprecedented level of privacy, comfort, and luxury go hand in hand. The exclusive Maldives resort, One & Only Reethi Rah, meaning "Beautiful Island" in the native language of "Dhivehi," is surrounded by the sparkling turquoise waters of the Indian Ocean and set amid 109 tropical acres. The resort, sited on one of the largest islands in North Male' Atoll, is part of the One & Only award-winning chain of resorts that welcome visitors to some of world's most beautiful locales. This rare jewel affords astonishing levels of seclusion with four miles of unspoiled coastline that beckon guests to its 12, pristine white-sand beaches, each lying in a private cove.

LEFT: A villa interior created with vivid tropical colors and natural textures such as teak, rattan, mahogany, silk and coconut shell, overlooks a private infinity pool.

FAR LEFT: An infinity edge pool is set amid a lush tropical landscape with a view of a private, white-sand beach.

TOP: Suspended above the Indian Ocean is an over-water villa with an expansive veranda for lounging or dining. Reethi Rah's villas are traditionally thatched by local craftsman using young coconut palm leaves.

Guests journey to Reethi Rah on the resort's private yacht, and upon arrival, are led to a sleek reception area. Here, an open wood tropical pavilion featuring eight, carved interior columns rest atop cool, black-polished terrazzo flooring, inset with teak.

The 130 luxurious villas, some with private infinity pools, were designed by Jean Michel Gathy, Director of Denniston International Architects. Gathy created exteriors with Balan wood imported from Malaysia, along with spacious interiors in a vibrantly colored blend of Asian inspired and tropical style. Villas feature soaring ceilings, sumptuous king-sized beds wrapped in 300-thread count Egyptian linens, oversized tubs, a Bose Lifestyle surround system and expansive verandas, all with ocean views.

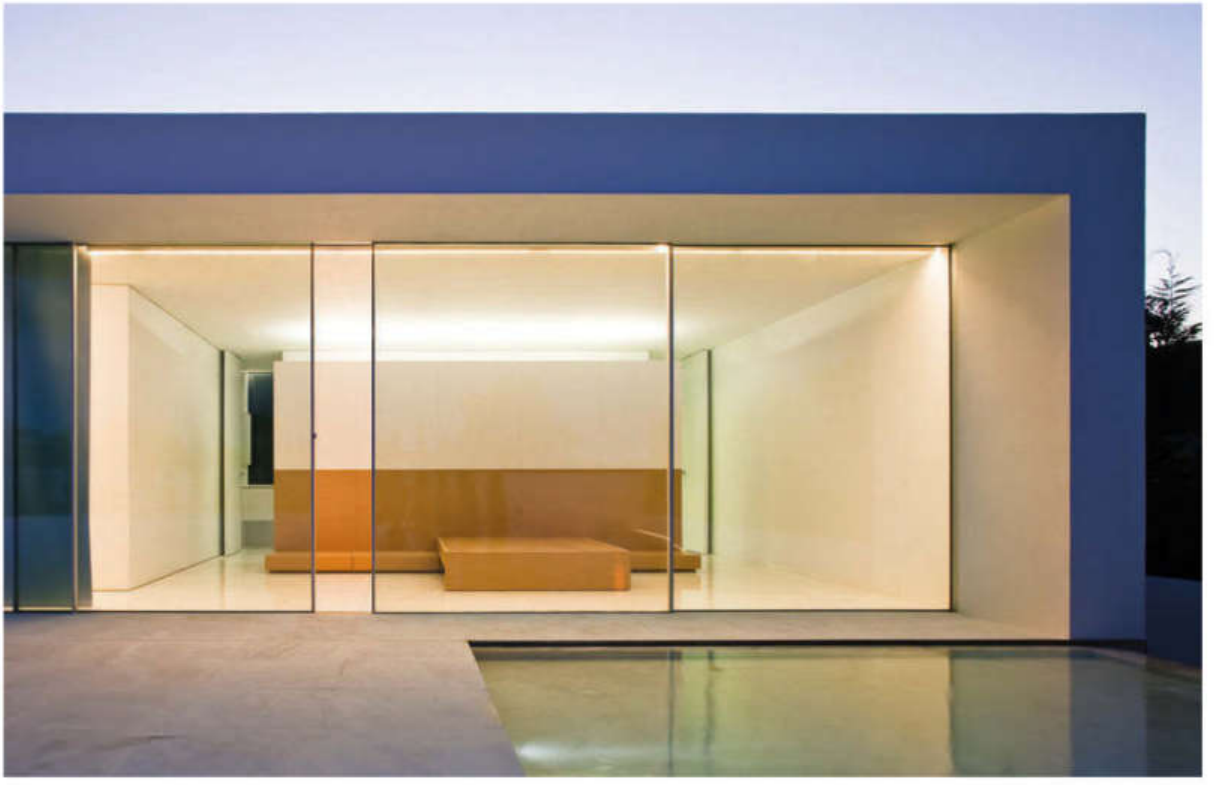

Three restaurants offer eclectic fare and stunning views of sea and sky. Dine at Reethi Restaurant, where attire is always Island chic, and an alfresco fusion of Far Eastern, Middle Eastern and Mediterranean cuisine tempt the palate. Tapasake, a sophisticated over-water Japanese restaurant created with interiors of glass and stone, serves fresh sushi and Fanditha, where healthful Middle Eastern fare can be enjoyed on the beach while lounging on Arabian divans and hammocks. Later, sip champagne cocktails in the three-level Rah Bar designed with sweeping water views in mind.

Along with a wide array of complimentary land and water activities, a dive center and a fitness studio, the ultimate indulgence awaits at the One & Only Spa, by ESPA, set amid tranquil gardens and manicured lawns. In eight treatment spa suites, two over water, guests are pampered with revitalizing therapies including Thai Massage and European aromatherapy.

"LADY CANDY"

The Jewel Of The Benetti Family Class Of Luxury Superyachts, M/Y Lady Candy Offers The Ultimate Experience In Style, Comfort And Superior Performance

TEXT Susan Sherman | PHOTOGRAPHY Jeff Brown, Superyacht Media

LEFT: The main deck welcomes guests to the large saloon and bar area. Furnished with comfortable pieces in soft ocean hues, it is the ideal space for socializing.

RIGHT: The sun-drenched deck is a large open-air terrace. Here, family and guests can enjoy a dip in the Jacuzzi or relax with a cocktail from the mini bar in sleek, custom-designed lounge chairs and sofas.

M/Y Lady Candy's five spacious decks feature long bands of tinted windows that provide contrast against the stark white hull. With a crew of 12 and spaces that provide the ultimate in luxury and comfort, the ship maintains a comfortable cruising speed at 17 knots, and can easily navigate into small bays and ports free of crowds.

Master Italian yacht maker Benetti introduced the majestic M/Y Lady Candy in 2013 with a contemporary design, superior technology and stylish interiors. The 184-foot, 962-ton luxury vessel is the ultimate floating residence. Built from aluminum and steel on a time-tested Naval architectural platform, the ship cruises at a maximum speed of 17 knots. With Naval design from Benetti, together with styling from Captain Paul Brackley's Central Yacht Design Studio, the exterior lines of the ship have a contemporary feel and a timeless elegance. Luxuriously Curated Interiors Meet World-Class Design And Architecture At IconBay and GranParaiso

LEFT AND BELOW: The Related Group joins forces with the award-winning architectural firm Arquitectonica to design the exterior and common spaces of the 43-story, 300-unit IconBay tower replete with enduring art installations, sculptural designs and bay inspirations.

Helmed by real estate impresario Jorge M. Pérez, The Related Group, whose visionary properties define luxury living in Miami's burgeoning artistic neighborhood of Edgewater, debuts its new IconBay and GranParaiso towers. With highly defining characteristics and a diverse collection of fine art, Pérez aims to complement each project's distinctive architecture with equally impressive works of art.

Blending harmoniously with these iconic towers is the City of Miami's new Icon Bay Park. This waterfront pocket park, elegantly styled by ArquitectonicaGEO, opens a scenic link between the City and the Bay. Fusing nature and art, the landscaped oasis embodies Related's greater vision of a series of elegant waterfront parks connected by a continuous baywalk.

A Design Team Reimagines A Spec House To Embrace One Couple's Vision In Jupiter's Exclusive Admirals Cove

INTERIOR DESIGN Katherine Thomas, Lifestyle by Design of Jupiter, Jupiter, FL
BUILDER Sebastian Smallegange and Ryan Kelly, Turtle Beach Construction, Inc., Jupiter, FL
ARCHITECTURE Mitch Kunik and Benjamin Schreier, Affiniti Architects, Boca Raton, FL
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE Koby Kirwin, Exteriors by Koby Kirwin, Naples, FL

PHOTOGRAPHY Carmel and Robert Brantley, Delray Beach, FL

"Sometimes the intensity works to your advantage," designer Katherine Thomas says. "Due to structural changes, the team lost three months on an already tight finish date, but the result was well worth the extra effort."

ABOVE: "Even before entering, you're drawn inside," Thomas says. The original spec house's stairway was moved so that the entire foyer opens upon a view of the extravagant pool and its islands.

ABOVE RIGHT: Crisp whites and shimmering grays prevail, yet textural interest abounds. With white marble flooring, a lacquer-topped cocktail table, Lisa Taylor's stainless-framed club chairs, a white porcelain-tiled fireplace and Kravet's metallic-hued draperies … monochrome is the interior palette.

THE AQUA WATERS OF JUPITER INLET ONLY MINUTES AWAY ... CHECK; golf courses on rolling green turf … check; and a waterfront lot and dock perfect for a boat and some serious deep sea fishing … double check. What wasn't perfect about the site in exclusive Admirals Cove in Jupiter, Fla.? Well, the original house that sat on that lot according to Ryan Kelly, Vice President of Turtle Beach Construction. "It was frankly, the ugliest, green house in the development," he says. And President of Turtle Beach, Sebastian Smallegange decided it should be razed. In its place the design/build company would create a property "on spec" that would reflect a contemporary mentality with some exotic ethnic lines. Along with longtime collaborator, Katherine Thomas of Lifestyle by Design, the partners planned a Balinese-inspired 9,000-square-foot home in a setting suggestive of an upscale Asian resort.

"The owners chose to forego window coverings in the foyer," Thomas says. A strategically placed mirror peeks out from beneath the walnut-stained white oak stairway crafted by South Florida Stairs.

Just as homes built with the hope of interesting potential buyers are supposed to do, this elegant nearly finished property found purchasers who fell in love — with most everything. "That's when Affiniti Architects was called in," says Benjamin Schreier, who worked on the project. "The new owners wanted some tweaks ... a twist here and a turn there." Instead of an open upstairs balcony, the couple wanted an enclosed exercise room in its place, which called for structural changes to support an entire room and roof. And a new stairway, designed by Thomas, underscored the owners' desire for a sleek contemporary flavor.

Nothing less than a tropical oasis shapes the outdoor social spaces. "Koby Kirwin designed the amazing pool," Thomas says. The watery complex contains two islands holding pool beds, three planter islands with their own palms, a floating walkway and a spa, all clad in multifaceted blue glass tiles. A triple waterfall spills from the face of the bar as tiny fountains keep the water temperature just right.

ABOVE: Artist Juro Kralik's The Bright Side of Infinity from DTR Modern Galleries dots the wall in the family room. Here, a deep-seated sectional sofa from Design NS and American Leather's white lounge chairs from Sklar shape the space. Just beyond the dining area, automated draperies pull open to reveal the tropical waterway.

Step inside, where exterior glass walls recede into pockets behind the fireplace to blur the boundaries between the loggia and living room. A glass wall abuts the porcelain-tiled fireplace to delineate the office beyond. "The homeowners required very little color, preferring textures and design lines for punch," Thomas says. One exception is the green glass sculpture the owners purchased from an Italian museum for which the designer created a subtly lit pedestal.

Hearthside, club chairs introduce stainless geometry that continues throughout the house. Covered in gray metallic fabric from S. Harris, their sheen is picked up by sequined pillows from Sklar.

In the foyer, Thomas worked with the architects to style the stairway crafted of walnut-stained white oak. The ascending sections are cantilevered from the wall and strengthened with hidden steel rods. Glass balustrades at once sparkle and recede as the eye lifts toward the upstairs catwalk and a galaxy-like Leucos chandelier.

Walls of glass wrap the blended dining area and family room in cool and casual comfort. A deep-seated, sectional sofa provides the perfect spot for total relaxation. Overhead, Thomas created a coffered ceiling in which hidden sconces illuminate like a starry night.

LEFT: In the master bedroom, Tech Lighting's glass pendants cast a soft glow over the custom bed and elongated bedside chests designed by Thomas. The homeowner's chaise and hearthside lounge chairs are positioned for ultimate relaxation.

Styled in platinum hues and dark woods, the master bedroom overlooks the pool's "palm islands" and spa. With a woven plaster wall facing a soft, faux silk, upholstered headboard, Thomas introduced a third texture, a grass-cloth band of crown molding and bed surround, organically anchoring the high elegance found throughout.

Outside, cushioned sofas and chairs beckon swimmers and sunbathers from the labyrinthine pool area. "A place to put our feet up" was the goal the owners achieved

It's good to gather with family and friends — and it's also good to find a quiet place to chat. On the loggia, Kannoa's vinyl-wrapped sofas, tables and chairs seated with Sunbrella's plush pewter-colored cushions form several social groupings.

with the dramatic fire-table from Restoration Hardware. With a smiling sigh of relief, the team effort by builder, architect, and designer was certainly worth it as a spec home turns into a custom dream home. "Sometimes the intensity works to your advantage. Due to structural changes, the team lost three months on an already tight finish date, but the result was well worth the extra effort," Thomas says. "And most importantly, the homeowners love it."

A MASTER OF ANGLES AND BOUNDARIES

Whatever The Genesis, Entering A Space Architecturally Designed By Steven Gurowitz Is To Venture Onto A Set Of Geometrical Virtuosity

INTERIOR DESIGN Steven Gurowitz and Ibis Hernandez, Interiors by Steven G., Inc., Pompano Beach, FL
TEXT Marina Brown
PHOTOGRAPHY Barry Grossman, Weston, FL

INTERIOR DESIGNER STEVEN Gurowitz must have spent his childhood gazing at the stars, where space is virtually indeterminate. Perhaps he had fantastical dreams in which boundaries moved and shifted — coming-to or going-from the undefined. Not one ceiling is left flat and unattended. No corner remains without reflected light. And rare is the wall that doesn't have something that resonates symbiotically elsewhere in the room.

And yet, the designs by Steven G. are as serene as … a pristine waterfall … that is exactly one of the features he decided to incorporate into an extravagantly elegant home in the oceanfront Ritz-Carlton Residences on Singer Island. Facing South Florida's Atlantic coast from the 5th floor, the 3,800-square-foot apartment is created for a bachelor whose only directive was "to make it flow; make it elegant; make it livable." The rest was in Steven G. and his associate designer Ibis Hernandez' hands. "We actually are very familiar with this building," Steven G. says. "We've created 17 different models, yet no two are alike."

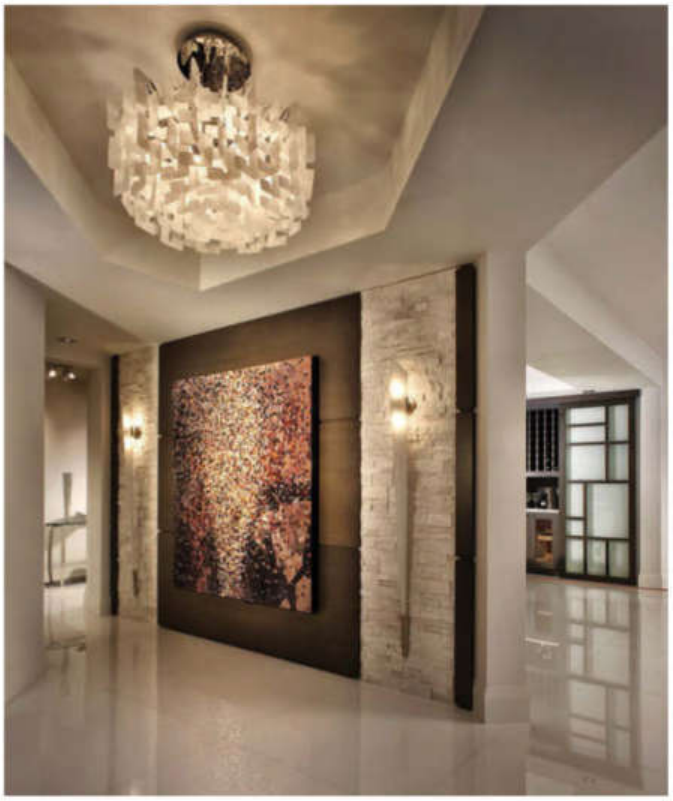

The Ritz-Carlton's view of the Atlantic Ocean is recalled inside the serenely monochromatic living area of this expansive residence. With Italian Gamma Arredamenti sofas and stools in white leather, and delicate Mobital's glass occasional tables, the space takes on an international flavor.

Stained fine-grained birch acts as columns and linear reveals on the mirrored wall in the dining area. With its angular base, Rossetto's dining table centers leather-clad Nathan Anthony chairs. Vivid landscape photography by Benjamin Edelstein adorns the wall above matching white-lacquer cabinetry.

In the foyer entry, slender sconces from Studio Italia Design shift the drama upward toward an explosion of facets in the sculptural chandelier from Eurofase.

Keeping the palette purposefully pale, the designer unobtrusively explored the living area's angles in every dimension. An area rug from Wendy Clark Designs mimics the Mondrian-like shapes on sliding screens that enclose the dining area's wine bar. The floating ceilings above a Mobital cocktail table in the living area and above the dining table beyond, themselves become stunning architectural sculptures.

A wall of water delicately plays into a stainless trough lined with egg stone to provide a wow factor. "The water circulates quietly just beyond the sofa in the hall, which leads to the master suite on one side and the attached private study on the other," the designer says.

Nothing says "good times" like music. The owner's player piano at one end of the living area balances the draw of the bar area devoted to television and a fine liqueur. Steven G., again not content to hold things down, this time floated a plank of glass mounted on stainless posts to create a suspended bar counter. Narrow stainless pendant lamps from Eurofase hang above the bar.

ET2's glass pendants light the kitchen's bar area in elegant transition between the culinary prep zone and family room. Nearby, stainless steel and glass play well as the sparkle of light from Trend's chandelier and Mobital's dramatic table captures that of the cityscape.

Though the dining area's inset position might have remained dark, horizontally mounted mirrors pull tropical light deep within. Steven G. finds light and lighting to be one of his most important design tools, and here, even the reflective, white marble flooring assists him. AXO's crystal chandelier calls attention not only to the stepped and floated ceiling panel, but the agile use of structural ductwork to house even more cached LEDs.

No one told the designer that small spaces demand small accouterments. In the entry foyer, he covered a wall in dramatic Alaska Ledgerstone and inset smooth rift-cut oak. Here, abstract expressionism reigns with California Series #14 by Craig Alan, an artist with a broad knowledge and appreciation of the human form as well as the colorful world these beings occupy.

Flowing best describes the kitchen, breakfast area and family room that become one related entity. With a splash of light from Mobital's polished stainless table and Trend Lighting's hanging halo, the casual eating area is just steps away from a molded breakfast counter fronted by smooth leather stools.

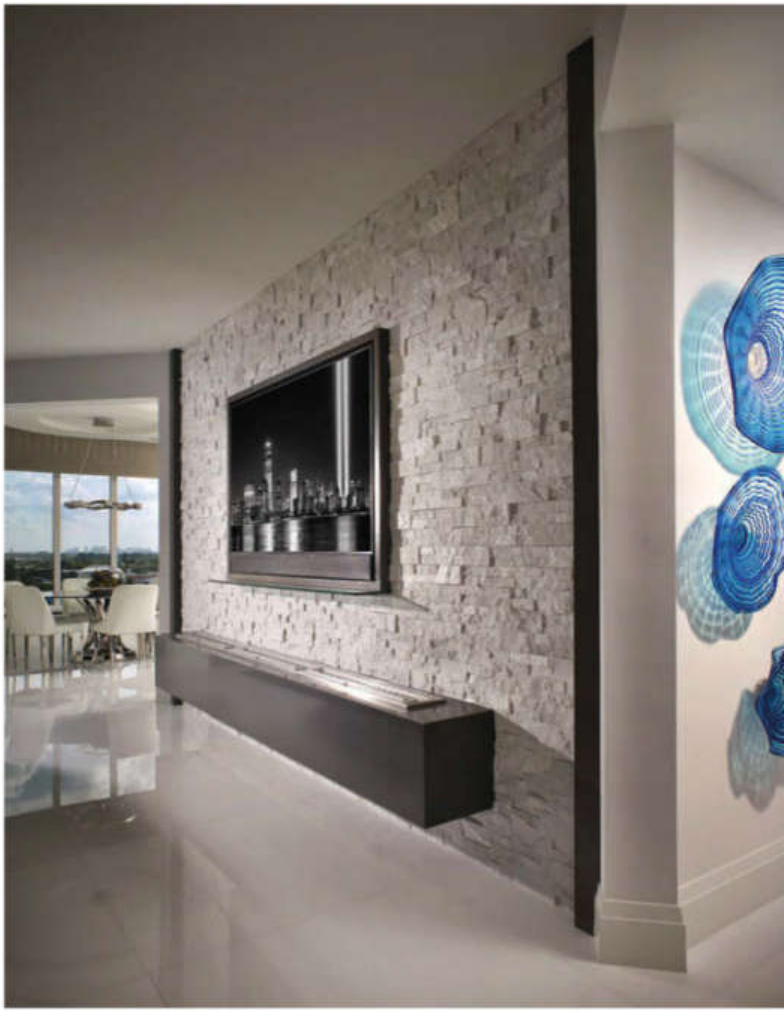

A cocoa-colored sofa from American Leather and a Delos berber area rug define the media zone in the office, where business is not always on the day's agenda.

With a subtle shift in function, an ultra-suede sofa in soft cocoa hues faces a textured wall of ledgerstone in the family room. As throughout, subliminal blues are delicately splashed, here in the glass, pedestal-mounted vases that remind one to turn toward the sea.

The owner makes a home office, or invites friends in for some serious viewing in an intimate space just off the master bedroom. In somber browns and taupes, a nondescript wall becomes vibrant in bold metallic stripes and textures from Romo. A glove-soft leather sofa wraps around two white-lacquer occasional tables from Fine Mod Imports. Into a room of linear associations, VISO's globe-like floor lamp holds its own in a corner space. The designer created a wall of espresso and white lacquer to surround the television, and underlined the room's length with a "lightning bolt-shaped" dropped ceiling.

In a condo residence unique for its angled walls and surprise relationships to other rooms, each area stands on its own. "Design within the parameter of the space," Steven G. says. "Lighting the air around you is good design, too."

Acknowledging America's fascination with media, Steven G. positioned televisions in the family room, office, bedrooms, baths, and twice in the living area. Here, a floating console turns an additional television into a piece of art. Around the corner, blue glass wall sculptures from Cyan Design are the real thing.

Velvets and silk carry the day in the master bedroom, where lacquers and polished stone simply serve as backdrop to Romo's velvet chenille on a bench, Wendy Clark Designs' nubby area rug and sheer draperies from Donghia. Bespoke bedside cabinetry sits low and long as hinged, geometric pendants shimmer above.

The master bedroom is sheer monochromatic luxury, each surface adorned with a texture or shape to contemplate. The monolithic headboard is polished leather set against a gray mirror. Again, the ceiling echoes the form below. Here, acting almost like a canopy, the illuminated panel reinforces the drama of the bed. As in many of his bedrooms, Steven G. stations an elegant chaise for drama and practicality, this one from Whiteline Imports. "Perfect for beach gazing," the designer says. And perfect for gazing at the heavens and the stars as well.

JUDY SWERLICK CUSTOM PORTRAITS PLUS!

Anthony N. Caggiano for "Princess Sophia"
Life is funny. There are times when you see something and all you can say is, "WOW". That was the first thing I said when I saw my daughter on canvas. I still say that a year later. The essence of Sophia was captured, frozen in time and will always have a place on the wall in our home. Thank you, Judy.

JUDY SWERLICK'S PASSION IS PAINTING people, and she would love to capture, in acrylic or watercolor paint, the important people in your life and special events, such as WEDDINGS, BIRTHS and VACATIONS, as well as your favorite pets or landscapes. Judy will paint from your beloved photographs or, if you are located in South Florida, she will be happy to come to you to photograph the subject you would like painted. Judy is a professional, exhibiting artist with a BS and MS degree in art. Please take time to enjoy her artwork and the testimonials written by her excited clients on the links below. - Advertorial

Manuel J Motin for "Tribute to Sharon"
Sharon's portrait captures her so well, so naturally, and realistically, I feel an immediate connection to her. It is amazing how Judy was able to create the resemblance to her face, transmitting her special personality and spirit, creating this very fine piece of art.

David Anderson for "Remembering a Special Young Man"
Judy Swerlick is an amazing and wonderful person who expresses herself beautifully through her art. I have admired her work for many years and am proud to say that I now own three of her works. Each one is displayed in a place of honor in my home. The one that is most treasured is the portrait of my son, Michael. Judy was able to do so much more than recreate a photograph – she gave it life.

Jody Johnstone for "London in the 50's"
Judy turned a small family snapshot into a beautiful sepia portrait that captures a special, joyful childhood moment. Her "London in the Fifties" shows my husband at age 4, feeding pigeons at Trafalgar Square. I particularly like the portrait's composition and the way Judy captured the scene from the child's perspective—from the ground up, with the birds taking center stage. During her work on this piece, Judy kept in touch with us to share ideas and confirm details. We found Judy to be professional, responsive, and lovely to work with at every stage in the process, and we recommend her highly.

FROM FLORIDA TO FLORENCE

One Prominent Florida Family Reimagined Their Hutchinson Island Estate As A Magnificent Italian Palazzo, One That Would Also Pay Homage To Their European Heritage

INTERIOR DESIGN Joan Simonsen-Hickok with Christina Goodman and Leslie Thompson, Simonsen-Hickok Interiors, Inc., Naples, FL
BUILDER Paul Kleinfeld, First Florida Development & Construction, Inc., Stuart, FL
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE Coastline Landscaping & Maintenance, Inc., Palm City, FL
TEXT Marina Brown
PHOTOGRAPHY Laurence Taylor, Winter Park, FL

Set on a curving waterway, the Italianate mansion enjoys expansive views from every window. Employing exterior architectural devices such as Corinthian columns and triangular pediments, it signals the lavish grandeur that waits inside.

A palette of ethereal pastels sets the tone in the grand salon, where interior designer Joan Simonsen-Hickok hits her decorating stride with a throne of soft, Luigi Bevilacqua fabric on Cache sofas from J. Nelson.

WHILE MOST FLORIDIANS LOOK FORWARD TO FALL, the residents of Hutchinson Island, an exclusive barrier strip separating the Atlantic Ocean from the Indian River near Stuart, Fla., can't help but be reminded of a devastating event. In September of 2004, Hurricane Frances and then two weeks later Hurricane Jean, delivered a knockout punch to the island with wind gusts of 100mph to 120mph. While some moved to less-threatening locales, one family decided to turn a destructive event to their advantage. The owners of this already grand mansion created in the Palm Beach style, set out to reimagine their residence as a Renaissance-inspired palazzo.

First to join the design team that completed the project was builder Paul Kleinfeld, followed by interior designer Joan Simonsen-Hickok. The planned residence and its adjoining guest house would be nearly 20,000 square feet with plenty of space for visiting family and for gala parties the couple loved to host. Interiors would be dramatic, and true to the Renaissance period in Venice — complete with groin vaulted ceilings, cerulean-skied murals, and miles of marble and gilt.

The table in the elegant dining room is frequently set for 22. Acquired by the owner, and later gilded by the designer, it is a stunning focal point in an elaborate room with a backdrop of cabinetry painted by master craftsman Thomas Bowman.

The front façade features a blend of Corinthian columns and triangular pediments, which unite to reflect Florida as much as Florence. "I saw this house as a renaissance, not only in period, but because it was a rebirth after the destruction," Simonsen-Hickok says. She incorporated the story of the house into four, 26-foot ceiling panels in the main salon — the first depicts the original house, the second the post-storm damage, the third the rebuilding and finally, the joy of a recreated home. Christine Moore, a celebrated oil painter, executed the works on canvas that were attached to the massive ceiling panels. In addition to the panels, a series of half-moon lunettes hold painted "putti," figures of chubby children gleaned from photographs of the owners' grandchildren.

In the grand salon, walls are mottled in creamy Venetian plaster, while the floors are a pietre dure of inlaid marble. To anchor the space, Simonsen-Hickok

ABOVE: A balcony fashioned with dramatic, wrought iron balustrades provides a perfect view of the grand salon's magnificent chandelier. A pair of hanging, satin gold lanterns from Chameleon Fine Lighting brighten the space, while canvases painted in oils decorate the walls and massive 26-foot ceilings. Each canvas, unique and in sequence, tells a personal story about the homeowners and their children.

In the master bath, delicate tendrils that face the sides of columns and the marble painted above turn the master bath into a wonderland of fantasies. Venetian, yet with a hint of French whimsy, the pastels found in the remarkably colored marble flooring are reminiscent of French painter Fragonard.

custom designed a savonnerie-style rug from Stark with symbols important to the owners and then used the steely blue of the ceiling on velvet clad sofas from Cache. The designer also introduced a variety of dramatic pieces such as a large round focal table by Lewis Mittman flanked by delicate benches, an inlaid game table surrounded by Fortuny covered chairs from Dennis & Leen, and a regal wood and gilt desk from Gregorius Pineo. "Even in a room this size," Simonsen-Hickok says, "it is possible to introduce pieces that do not overwhelm each other."

The dining room features extraordinary cabinetry crafted by Thomas Bowman of Heartwood Mint. Painted in hues of blue and gold, it showcases the owners' collection of fine china. The designer gilded the table that accommodates 22 and chose chair fabric from Osborne & Little to complement the turquoise tints in the cabinetry.

ABOVE: In the conservatory, walls are designed like a centuries old palazzo that has been left untouched. The surround of the fountain in mosaic tiles is flanked by a pair of zinc lanterns and a vintage birdcage. An iron candelabra, suspended above a rattan chair and ottoman covered in a Scalamandré fabric, completes the ambiance.

Upstairs, a 2nd-floor balcony leads to the bedroom suites. In addition to the complex vaulted ceilings, Kleinfeld added dramatic wrought iron balustrades. In each of the perimeter ceiling coffers, Simonsen-Hickok installed family crests that reflect the owners' respective Swedish and Italian heritages.

Niches, columns and mystery abound in the dramatic master bath, a space that is theatrically gorgeous from its painted bas-relief columns to the abstract glory of yellow and blue striated marble flooring, to the trompe d'oeil art on its vaulted ceiling curves.

The sunlit pool area offers multiple spaces for entertaining. Guests can relax on lounge chairs from McKinnon and Harris, cushioned in fabric from Dedar, while double fountains play across the pool. With just a turn of the head, boats can be seen coasting up the waterway.

Under daubs of Venetian plaster, the conservatory is created with walls that appear to expand. "We aged the complicated ceiling as if a cloud were high overhead," the designer says. A casual chair from Wicker Works covered in elegant crewel fabric from Scalamandré provides a tranquil space to relax amid delicate blooms and greenery.

A private cabana overlooks the sculpted pool in this magnificent palazzo, created for entertaining and quiet moments. "After a year of research and discovery, I think the couple's dreams were realized … and I am so honored to have been a part of it," the designer says.

LATIN RHYTHM

Good Design Knows No National Boundaries — Just Ask Interior Designer Pepe Calderin

INTERIOR DESIGN Pepe Calderin and Mayleen Marrero, Pepe Calderin Design, Miami, FL
builder Pedro Rangel, Sunset Contractors, Inc., Miami, FL
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE Juan Carlos Arzola, JC Enterprise Services, Sunrise, FL

A deep-seated sofa from Luminaire joins B&B Italia's bright orange "Tulip" chairs to shape a social grouping in the living room, where Jose Bedia's circular art Figura Predestinada from Cernuda Arte dots the wall in fun.

IT IS NO SECRET THAT THE CULTURAL LINE BETWEEN THE Americas — its Latin and its Northern counterparts — has become more blurred in recent years. Everything from fashion to music finds adherents on both continents and in between. The same holds true for architecture and design.

When interior designer Pepe Calderin, a native of Cuba, was asked by his clients to design and remodel a 4,000-square-foot home in Doral, Fla., the couple brought with them the sensibilities of both Venezuela and Cuba. Calderin and his lead designer, Mayleen Marrero, sought to translate the owners' vision into something with both the alegria de vivir (joy of living) of the warmer climes and the sleek South Florida styling that plays to any cultural aesthetic.

But first there were the "brick and mortar" issues. "The home was about 20 years old," Marrero says. "The ceilings jutted at a variety of angles and the stairway was not up to code." Calderin and Marrero moved the front entry, designed a new stairway and built it all on a platform. Still, the angled ceilings, which ranged from 10 feet to 14 feet, could prove daunting to integrate into a residence that had left the last century behind. "Not so for Pepe," Marrero says. "One of his signature elements is innovative ceiling design."

By floating a large panel overhead and caching tiny LED lights behind it, the eye is pulled to the center of the living room and what lies below — an astounding, cantilevered fireplace wall covered in white onyx. Weighing in at nearly 400 lbs., the hand-selected slabs are suspended by structural steel with an inner wall of Plexiglass, between which is the delicate illumination.

"Because the onyx takes on a variety of colors as the sun dances on it during the day, or if it's lit from behind at night, the area rug combines not only the owners' favorite color, turquoise, but a range of beiges, yellows and oranges from the stone," Marrero says. Glas Italia's mirrored occasional tables and Calderin Design's own glass cocktail table provide plenty of reflected sparkle.

ABOVE: The dining area's restrained simplicity calls attention to its luxurious quality as Artefacto's "Cruiser" chairs line the long, glass-topped table from Anima Domus. Terzani's whimsical bent wire chandelier provides a creative twist above a glass banana leaf centerpiece from Niba Home.

With three steps ascending dramatically from the living room, the dining area, foyer and stairwell now stand tall, making for the perfect entrance into what has become a sophisticated, “sunken” living room.

Despite the sheer beauty of wenge wood, a rippling water wall and Opustone’s marble flooring, the three-burner fireplace reigns supreme as a variety of colors play off the exotic onyx.

The cabana room, which flows conveniently onto the pool area and outdoor kitchen/gazebo, has family and fun written all over it.

A study in darks, whites and the glowing stone, the elevated dining area belies its size with what appears to be the barely supported glass dining table. With a view toward the front entry, diners are surrounded by warm wenge paneling and the soft glow of white onyx.

Not content with the singularity of the fireplace wall, nor of the theatrical three-step elevation, this design duo introduced yet another eye-popping feature: a mirrored, rippling water element nestled in a stacked travertine wall on the landing. "Water is very important to our design, as are the organic surfaces of wenge wood and stone," Marrero says. As if continuing a Feng Shui checklist, more reflecting surfaces are found in room-opening glass railings by Empire Metal.

RIGHT: Good design is knowing where and when to splash color. With Daniela Wicki's Maras 45 lighting up a wall, a resonating red throw from ThreadCount, and B&B Italia's whimsical ball and chain chair, the grays and taupes seem to gain relevance as Kinnasand's sheer, subtly striped draperies wrap the cabana room.

To the original structure, the design team both took and gave back. "We added a cabana room, and an outdoor gazebo and pool. The cabana room, which flows conveniently onto the pool area and outdoor kitchen/gazebo, has family and fun written all over it. "The couple has a school-age child — with many cousins," Marrero says. With its Paul Bunyan-size sofa from B&B Italia that seems meant for jumping, the bold punch of primary reds also suggests a place for some "man-cave" time. The elongated oval of the ceiling's millwork gives the illusion of a soaring dome with LED lighting that once again proves its magic.

Outside, the balcony overlooks the 56-foot-long pool complete with its spa and soaking bar. Just beyond is the shimmering lake and swaying imported palms that gently ring the water. And judging by the pure joy of living found in this redesigned home, soft nights of music and dance, entertainment and laughter will continue to bind the Americas for many years to come.

RIGHT: In one of several conversation spaces, guests relax on Paola Lenti sofas and unique woven fabric chairs by Kettal — that for all the world resemble natural wicker. Hudson Furniture's superb teak trunk acts as a stylish cocktail table.

A Waterfront Home In Admirals Cove Is Styled As A Vacation Retreat With Relaxed, Light And Sophisticated Interiors

The glass-enclosed porch with scenic water views is the perfect space for lounging in clean-lined Vanguard leather armchairs from Judith Norman. A pair of chrome cocktail tables by Swaim tops a Calvin Klein Collection area rug that grounds the space in style.

For a pair of empty nesters living in St. Louis, Mo., the lure of the residential golf community of Admirals Cove in Jupiter, Fla., proved irresistible. The couple chose the established luxury development because of its waterfront access and various amenities that center on golf and recreation.

When the opportunity arose to purchase this 2,500-square-foot vacation home on the waterfront, the couple decided to acquire it even though they knew a major renovation lay ahead. The split-level residence had not been upgraded since it was first built in the 1980s.

In the dining area, a backdrop of large art glasswork suspends from a cutout in the wall. Commissioned from Artglass Palm Beach, it adds contrast against white leather and wood chairs that border a glass and chrome table by Aquarius.

Interior designer Donna Amerino, and partner Mike Maloney, took on the job of transforming a house that was dark and outdated. Maloney, a master designer, began drawing up floor plans, while Amerino searched for furnishings and textiles. "We wanted to make the home lighter," she says.

Other than gutting the old layout and taking down extraneous walls, the waterfront porch, flushed with natural light and a view of the Intracoastal Waterway, was fully enclosed and integrated into the home. "We call it the five o'clock room," Amerino says, referring to the now elegantly appointed former porch, where the couple enjoys cocktails with friends before dinner. Separating the porch and living area is a vent-free cantilevered fireplace — an architecturally designed, multi-dimensional feature wall that incorporates the fireplace, TV and audio sound system. Created with Carpathian burl wood, "it lends a more open feel to the space," the designer says.

A floating stairway in the foyer conveys a dramatic effect. "One of the critical design features was to improve the builder-grade stairway," the husband says. To achieve this, the team created a design that twists and flows like a piece of sculpture.

Brueton's navy blue chaise in the living area provides a comfortable place to relax. Glass horse head sculptures rest regally atop the custom-designed, cantilevered fireplace crafted by Fireside Distributors.

In the dining area, Constantini leather and wood chairs surround an Aquarius sculpted glass and chrome table from Judith Norman. Nearby, custom-designed, massive 18-foot-high Carpathian burl wood twin towers, the focal point of the entire space, lend architectural beauty, and function as niches for sculptures by artist Don Frost and additional storage. To complete the design, a suspended wood and stainless steel backlit architectural element floats between the towers.

Steps into the living area, the designers paired contemporary elegance with everyday comfort without detracting from the views or cluttering the home. Clean-lined and luxurious Metallic accents in the kitchen lend a sleek, contemporary feel with custom, silver-veneered cabinetry from Grand Illusions of the Palm Beaches and Nuevo's leather barstools based in chrome. A linear light fixture from Light Bulbs Unlimited illuminates a breakfast bar topped in striated blue marble.

Abstract artwork and sculpture are displayed throughout the home, from a metal sculpture near the stairway to a large, painted glass creation in the dining area. “We’ve enjoyed collecting art for many years,” the husband says.

furnishings by Brueton, that include a leather sofa, armchairs and a reflective chrome cocktail table, ensure that the decor is lean and sophisticated.

Having a state-of-the-art kitchen was a high priority for the owners. Extensive soffit work and custom-designed track lighting set the tone along with metallic, silver-veneered wood cabinetry. Exotic blue marble from Marble of the World, used throuout the space, provided the designers with the blue, white and silver palette for the home. “The colors are serene but in an upscale way,” Amerino says.

In the breakfast area, marble flooring shimmers beneath a round pedestal table bordered by stylish chairs that convey the impression of delicate lace.

When the home was complete, the designers had created something that was part New York City style, part upscale Miami Beach chic … but definitely not a typical Jupiter home. “This home is spectacular,” the husband says. “It is a place where we can totally relax … it’s contemporary, but not sterile.”

Fine Art Lamps recently introduced a state-of-the-art LED collection of handcrafted pendants and sconces designed by acclaimed international interior designer, Allison Paladino. The multi-award winning recipient of the prestigious ARTS Award, Fine Art Lamps has been creating and designing handcrafted decorative lighting with shimmering metals, hand-blown glass and other unique materials since 1940. The Allison Paladino Collection incorporates the company's exclusive studio process of dichroic rough-cut sculpted glass as conceived by its master glass artist, Frank Englesby. Illuminated by hidden LED's that create a multi-colored luster, each glass piece is transformed into a work of art meticulously hand-finished in either aged silver leaf, Florentine gold leaf or bronze.

With its sophisticated design and artistic craftsmanship, The Allison Paladino Collection for Fine Art Lamps will appeal to the most discerning tastes. For more information, please call 305/821-3850 or visit www.fineartlamps.com.◆

INFORMED BY THE LAND

Renowned Sarasota Architect Carl Abbott Marries Architecture And Nature To Create "The Dolphin House," A Modern Waterfront Home That Opens To Sea And Sky

Award-winning architect Carl Abbott has been known to study a site extensively before he begins a project. The architect conveys that his vision is "informed by the land," as he takes time to consider how the angles of the sun, views of the sea and stretch of horizon will affect the design. To create the exterior of this modern, 3,500-square-foot, multi-storied home in Siesta Key, Fla., with views of Sarasota Bay,

Abbott employed natural tones, nautical railings and huge wall panels of floor-to-ceiling glass to capture natural light and maximize all water views. "In this house, one has a sense of floating on the water … yet from the quiet road, there is no sense that it's near the Bay," the architect says.

Even now, "The Dolphin House," a name inspired by bottlenose dolphins who would frolick near the home's seawall, invites the finned friends to play. "As when I first visited the site ... a family of dolphins still visit the lagoon," Abbott says.◆

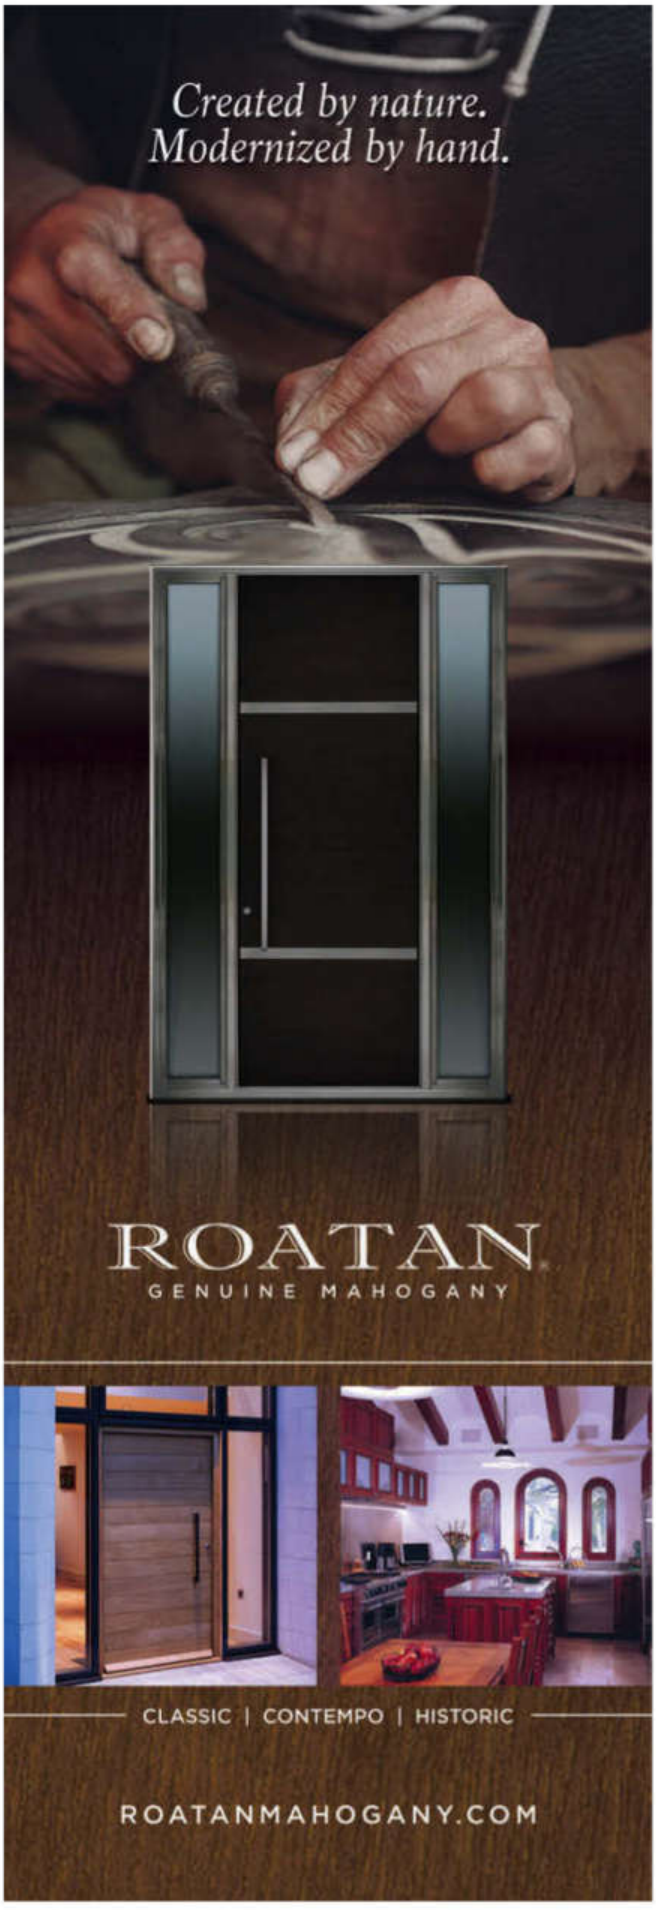

BELOW: Soaring glassed walls extend the full height of the home allowing strong rays of light to penetrate the interior spaces. The sunlit stairway ascends to the master bedroom suite, and to a terrace where the panorama of Sarasota Bay comes into view.

To take advantage of this small, irregularly shaped site, Carl Abbott created raised floor planes that rotate and respond to specific views. “There is a balance between solid and open, and a strong play between horizontal and vertical,” the architect says.

ROCHE BOBOIS' AZI YAMINIFAR

Selected To Fashion Interiors For A Long Island Estate, Roche Bobois' Designer Azi Yaminifar Marries Form and Function In One Striking Contemporary Home

TEXT Susan Sherman
PHOTOGRAPHY Michael Grimm, New York, NY

To create interiors for this oceanfront estate on Long Island in Sands Point, N.Y., Roche Bobois designer Azi Yaminifar utilized pieces from the renowned furnishing company's Les Contemporains collection. The line exemplifies Roche Bobois' affinity for blending form and function with exceptional quality in its more than 250 showrooms worldwide, including three in South Florida.

A self-proclaimed "minimalist designer," Yaminifar's architectural and design background was the perfect fit to create this open, contemporary space where striking style in a palette of red, white and black shines through oversized floor-to-ceiling windows. Inspired, customizable pieces lend the avant-garde touch for which Paris-based Roche Bobois is globally recognized. THOROUGHLY MODERN

In Her Elegantly Spare Naples Home, Interior Designer Tara Bates Creates A Fresh Open Look With Clean Lines And Vibrant Colors

ABOVE: In the front, floor-to-ceiling windows allow sunlight to shine through, while planters filled with bougainvillea soften the square white facade of the home. "I like the uniqueness of the facade and the clean look of white," interior designer Tara Bates says.

The defined entry foyer, elegant, modern and spare, provides a glimpse of the spectacular pool area. Overhead, LBL's blown-glass pendants from Hill's Lighting in a stunning Calla Lily design add artistic interest.

In the sophisticated great room, neutral seating vignettes adorned with lime green and orange accent pillows from Lilly Pulitzer, and artist Richard DeQuattro's painting on the wall, The Queens Court, brighten the space with bold splashes of color.

EVEN WHEN INTERIOR DESIGNER TARA BATES AND HER realtor husband, James, renovated historic properties in his native England, they wanted the interiors to be contemporary. So, when they moved to Naples, Fla., in 2006 and bought this 1958-era house, they decided to raze the entire home and build a brand new contemporary residence. "I wanted clean lines and materials that play off of each other," Bates says.

The couple commissioned Gerald Yurk, an architect with a passion for fine design and expertise in construction and technology, to design their 5,329-square-foot home located in historic Old Naples. "Tara and James have a European mentality and are tuned in to good design," Yurk says. "They wanted an open plan — clean and crisp with an observation deck to view the Gulf of Mexico." To reach the rooftop deck, Bates custom-designed a sculptural, exterior winding stairway that resembles a work of art.

To soften the look of the home's square, white front facade, the designer created large top and bottom planters and filled them with tropical bougainvillea. "This is done more in Europe … it's not known as much here," she says.

Inside, Bates selected a neutral color scheme of platinum, white, brown and gray, with textiles in crocodile prints and sharkskin. A mix of American Tigerwood flooring bordered by brushed, porcelain platinum tile flows throughout the interiors.

A love for mid-century modern furniture is evident in the spare white foyer, where a 1960s cherry wood mirror with tile inlay and a matching two-drawer shelf underneath reflects the couple's taste.

The foyer leads to a great room with dramatic 22-foot-high ceilings. "I didn't want a lot of little rooms … the house had to flow," the designer says. In the room's elegant sitting area, the couple frequently entertains friends from Naples and guests from the UK. Matching sofas crafted in England are upholstered in a crocodile-pattern from Kravet. Along with platinum-hued, leather chairs from Clive Daniel Home, they form a sophisticated conversation grouping around a Lucite and glass cocktail table from Pace, circa 1970s. On view through the room's floor-to-ceiling windows is a 50-foot-long lap pool, where Bates, an avid swimmer, likes to spend time. "The pool follows clean lines and has an elegant look," she says.

ABOVE: In the sleek kitchen, barstools from Modern Furniture Gallery tuck neatly underneath an island bar topped with thick Corian. Murano glass fish sculptures add beachside whimsy atop wenge wood cabinetry from Oppein. An expanse of platinum porcelain tiles flow through to the covered patio.

A luxurious white-leather headboard in the master bedroom backs a floating bed dressed in linens from Kravet. Calvin Klein's "Blue Steel" motorized draperies do not alter the view, but offer privacy when needed. An expanse of American Tigerwood flooring grounds the space.

Designed to entertain and highlight garden views, the open dining area features a mid-century modern table and chairs created by designer Milo Baugham, a pioneer of modern design. Crafted with wood and steel, the table is lined with six "Beautymark Shale" chairs and a pair clad in a platinum "Edgy Shark" tone, all from Kravet.

Just steps away, the stunning European-style kitchen is sleek with glossy white wood cabinetry. The thick, three-and-one-half-inch molded Corian countertop draws the eye to a center island bar that is wrapped in wenge wood. Platinum porcelain tiles from Design Works ground the space in style.

In the master bath vestibule, wallcovering by designer Joseph Abboud sets a serene mood. Overhead, LBL Lighting's bubble chandelier casts a soft glow on a free-form tub from Tyrell and Laing International. Hanging on a wall is The Swirl Girl, an eclectic piece acquired in England.

As if part of the garden, the master suite enjoys a view of the tropical foliage through sliding glass doors that lead to a private terrace. Above a wenge wood bed that appears to float, a platinum-hued wall is adorned with a colorful canvas that echoes bright outdoor shades. Mere steps to the open master bath vestibule, a free-form oval tub provides a tranquil place to unwind from the day.

A labor of love that exceeded their expectations, the home has everything that the couple wanted and more. "Now that James and I are living here, there is no other place we'd rather be," the designer says.

Take A Look Inside Designers Jay Britto And David Charette's High-Rise Home Overlooking Miami's City And Seascape

David Charette and Jay Britto

Perched on the 17th floor high above Miami's shoreline, designers Jay Britto and David Charette's two-story residence on Biscayne Boulevard overlooks the cityscape, the Intracoastal Waterway and the shimmering Atlantic Ocean beyond. This is where the busy duo relaxes, entertains and experiments in a home fondly dubbed "The Lab."

It took two months for Britto and Charette to decorate the 1,700-square-foot home imbued with natural light. "When Jay and I walked in and saw the sunrise views, I knew this was home," Charette says. For Britto, the twinkling nighttime cityscape is what lured him to the home with its two spacious balconies.

Guests and clients alike are invited to enjoy the open floor plan that flows from the main living areas to the balcony, passing through floor-to-ceiling glass sliders that bring Miami's vistas center stage. Using their apartment as an interior design lab offers their clients a tactile experience that gives them design solutions. "We can be playful and a bit daring here as we experiment," Britto says. "We strive to mix and match luxury and affordability.◆

RIGHT: The master bedroom is accented with a luxurious pearlescent fabric that provides a luminous backdrop for the felted headboard. Hidden behind the wall to-wall fabric is floor-to-ceiling storage — a perfect design solution for residences where space is limited.

A HOUSE WITHIN A HOUSE

Architect Phil Kean Designs A Scalable Modern Mediterranean Home Large Enough To Entertain A Crowd Yet Function Daily At One-Fourth Its Size

ARCHITECTURE Phil Kean, Phil Kean Design Group, Winter Park, FL
INTERIOR DESIGN Edward Woodill, Workscapes, Miami, FL
LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE Scott McLeod, McLeod Landscaping, Orlando, FL
TEXT Karen LeBlanc
PHOTOGRAPHY Michael Lowry, Clermont, FL

BUILT TO ENTERTAIN YET INTIMATE ENOUGH TO FUNCTION

daily, this transitional, 8,235-square-foot Modern Mediterranean residence viscerally envelops with its lake views and downtown cityscape. Homeowner Edwin DeJesus purchased his one-acre lot in the neighborhood of College Park in Orlando, Fla., on a peninsula surrounded by Lake Ivanhoe, just two miles from his downtown office. "I call it a hidden secret because it's close to downtown yet feels far from the city," he says.

DeJesus commissioned architect Phil Kean to design and build his new home for entertaining, and to function as "a house within a house." Kean joined forces with interior designer Edward Woodill to create a warm contemporary interior scheme throughout three independent areas: first, a modest daily living space that includes the kitchen, breakfast area, family room, master bedroom, laundry room and a small office; second, an in-law suite above the garage with its own entrance; and third, the rest of the house complete with the formal living room, game room, an office, three guest suites, a reading room, and an exercise room that sports a sauna and steam room. "I like the coziness of my living space and the ability to close off the large expansive spaces used for entertaining … Phil nailed the concept," says DeJesus, who in daily life inhabits only a quarter of the home.

ABOVE: The architectural style of this home, originally conceived as Mediterranean, evolved into a contemporary iteration. "It's inspired by a classic style but with a lot of modern elements," architect Phil Kean says.

Kean refers to the architectural style as transitional — a Mediterranean/Spanish design with a modern twist. "We didn't use arches, instead we replaced them with clean lines and minimized moldings. It's easy to visualize the Spanish influences," he says in reference to the solid wood arbors, soffits, straight-angled corbels, a courtyard and motor court with a three-car garage and single-car garage.

ABOVE: Rift-sawn White Oak wood with ebony stain flows through the foyer entry and boldly ascends the stairway that Kean designed as a visual trick. Steps suspend from the wall attached by a steel rod designed to "give" with movement.

Two solid wood silhouette sculptures by local artist Mike Sanchez stand tall near the window in the living room. A silk area rug from Carpet Source of Winter Park grounds the intimate fireside setting in warmth.

Whether perched in an original Arne Jacobsen "Egg Chair" or seated at the bar, the family room offers a cozy vantage point to observe Mother Nature. Crafted by Magnus Metal Works, a custom glass and aluminum-framed cocktail table with a sliding "TV tray table" provides the perfect spot to enjoy informal meals.

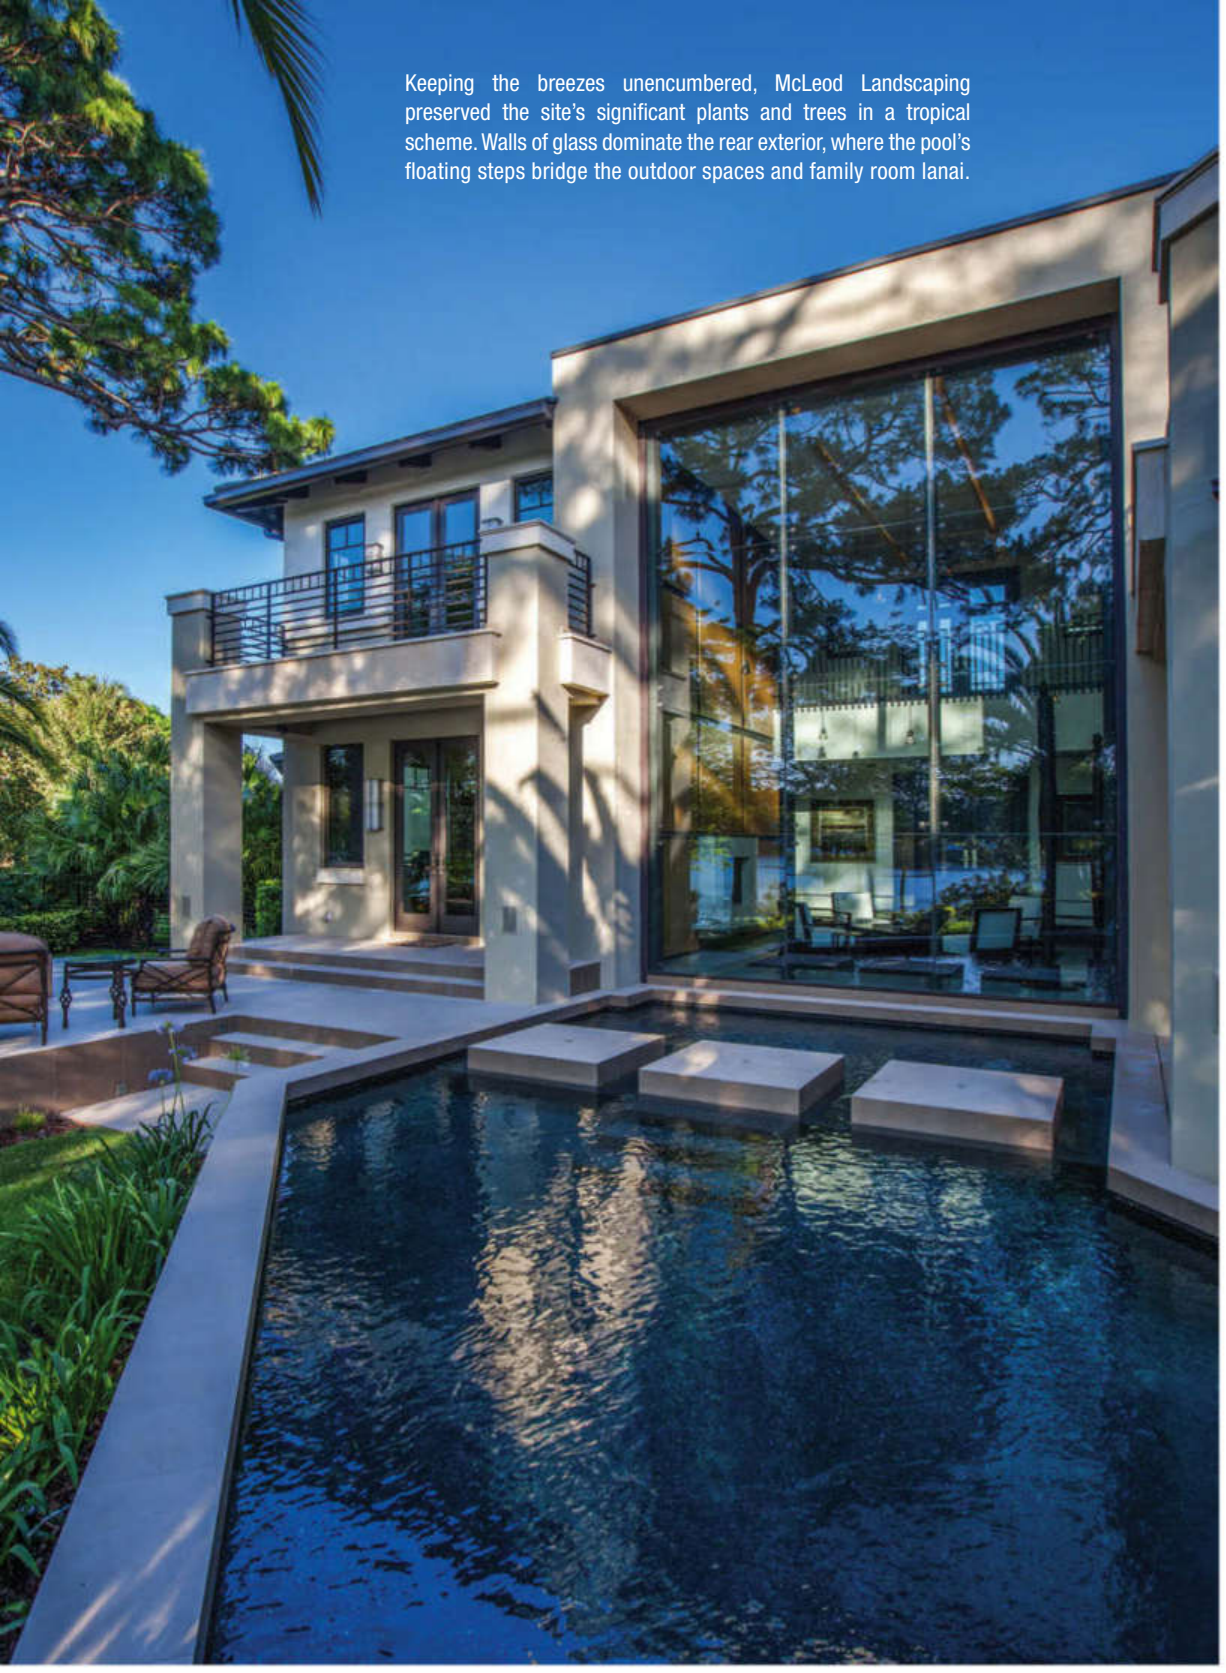

Set within lush vegetation and majestic magnolia trees, most of the home's facade is solid block with superimposed elements of wood and metal. The octagon tower serves as "the knuckle" of the home where the two angles come together.

Step inside, where the eye immediately travels from a Steinway & Sons grand piano to a gravity-defying stairway that appears to float. The set of square ascending windows captures views of the lake and city skyline beyond. A two-story wall of glass in the living room drinks in the lake view, while an intimate social grouping sits hearthside. The double-sided fireplace is an elegant demarcation between the living room and the game room. Hand-blown leaded crystal Pistil Pendants by artist Alison Berger hang at varying heights from each of the 12 square, LED back-lit ceiling coffers, forming a sweeping grid Kean designed that continues along the veneer-paneled fireplace wall. Terrazzo tiles the space in speckled metallic contrast to the aqua hues of the pool that hugs the home's edge.

DeJesus spends most of his downtime in the fully equipped family room, where a motorized retractable glass door slides open to a large lanai that blurs the boundaries between inside and out. The lanai then opens to the outside patio as three large motorized screen panels retract to allow tropical breezes to flow throughout. These layers provide the flexibility to make the area small and cozy or large and spacious for entertainment.

Keeping the breezes unencumbered, McLeod Landscaping preserved the site's significant plants and trees in a tropical scheme. Walls of glass dominate the rear exterior, where the pool's floating steps bridge the outdoor spaces and family room lanai.

With a style where inside is out and outside is in, large is small and small is large, this Mediterranean Modern home transitions into a perfect blend. "It's hard to tell when the home was built, which is the secret to good design — a sense of timelessness," Kean says.◆

WAVES OF WHITE

Wrapped In White With Ocean-Hued Accents, Minimalist Furnishings Allow The Eye To Focus On Breathtaking Views Of The Miami Beach Shoreline

TEXT Kim Mosley | PHOTOGRAPHY Ken Hayden, Miami Beach, FL

On a clear night, the homeowners of this spectacular 3,000-square-foot pied-à-terre in Miami Beach, Fla., perched on the 37th floor of the Setai Hotel and Residences, can see from downtown Miami and up to the Palm Beaches. With that in mind, the aesthetics of this interior scheme designed by Jennifer Post speak to both the style and ease of the "Magic City."

When dealing with glass wraparounds that reveal a white and blue sky, "you have to follow the ocean and skyline," the designer says. And so, white stone flooring, pure white walls and millwork are accented with subtle, sophisticated tones of green, blue and turquoise — hues that speak to the colors of the seascape beyond. In the hallway, pop artist Desire Obtain Cherish explores contemporary desires with his entertaining, oversized

IN THE MASTER BEDROOM, BOLDLY HUED THROWS ADD A SPLASH OF COLOR TO THE SEASIDE SETTING.

Meltdown lollipops that instantly tantilize the senses. Geometry takes precedence in the kitchen with an interfacing of glass, stainless steel accents and brilliant white rectangular surfaces. Throughout, a mix of sleek Italian furnishings combine with custom pieces designed by Post to provide a warm, minimalist setting that graciously welcomes one in and then allows the eye to focus on the panoramic views. Vibrant tones are more saturated in the social areas and become softer, more spa-like, as the calming palette flows through to the master bedroom. With a 180-degree-view that takes in the skyline, ocean and downtown Miami, the flow of the balcony offers a peaceful place to recline. "You can never go wrong with the purity of white," Post says. "It's ethereal, timeless and rich." ◆

Tonino Lamborghini CASA

Life is a five-star experience for residents of the Richard Meier Signature Penthouses at The Surf Club Four Seasons Hotel and Residences. The homeowners will enjoy breathtaking ocean-to-bay views, and the bespoke luxury and impeccable service associated with the Four Seasons brand.

THE SURF CLUB FOUR SEASONS HOTEL AND RESIDENCES

SURFSIDE, FLORIDA

A limited edition of 12 Richard Meier Signature Penthouses will crown the North and South towers of The Surf Club Four Seasons Hotel and Residences, a visionary project that epitomizes luxury living in the 21st century, while evoking the glamour of old Miami. The simplex, duplex, and triplex Signature Penthouses range in size from 5,400 to 7,500 interior square feet, are completely open to the sky, and include landscaped rooftop gardens, private swimming pools and summer kitchens that make entertaining a dream come true. The pièce de résistance to this magnificent offering is a personal and private design consultation with Richard Meier himself. Meier, best known as the designer of the Getty Center in Los Angeles and recipient of the Pritzker Prize, architecture's highest honor, imparts his mastery of profoundly contemporary architecture to the project, while carefully preserving The Surf Club's original 1930s charm.
